

Working in C-ODE

Community - Organisations, Development and Engagement

A new course for anyone working in communities

Qualification in Community Development Level 2&3

One day per week for 10 months starting October 2016

This course will support you to develop practical and analytical skills to work with a range of communities. Through the course you will gain

- an understanding of community development values and purpose, work with community groups and the diversity of communities
- skills in community development practice – inclusive group work, assessing community needs and reflective practice

The Trust for Developing Communities (TDC)

We work in neighbourhoods, across the city and beyond, with adults, young people and older people. Our trained and experienced workers work with local forums, groups and individuals - supporting partnerships and networks with other organisations to create and facilitate community-led changes.

As well as community engagement courses for the community and statutory sector, we deliver one-off consultancy and research projects such as surveys and needs assessments and develop training tailored for community settings.

Register your interest by emailing info@trustdevcom.org.uk or call 01273 262220

There will be an information workshop on Wednesday 20th April where you can find out more about the course and help to co-design the course materials.

The course will be delivered and sponsored by tdc with support from Brighton University. Bursaries will be available

The course is for anyone

- in paid work or volunteering
- who is actively involved in community development,
- in voluntary and community organisations, statutory bodies or businesses.
